News:

- Staff Spotlight: Ms. Kline is our very own music teacher here at NME. She began teaching in 2019 and absolutely loves it. Working with students every day makes her feel like one of the luckiest people on Earth. She adores teaching music because she gets to sing every day. She really enjoys playing golf, playing instruments, reading and crafting. Ms. Kline also has a furry friend, Buddy the dog. She enjoys taking him on long walks and treating him to strawberries! We are so glad you are here Ms. Kline!
- Math Photographer: Your youngster can take photos and find the math in them. Perhaps they will snap a shot of a quilt and tell you which shapes they see. Or they could photograph part of a brick wall and multiply to find the number of bricks in the picture. For example, 6 rows of 8 bricks each = 48 bricks.
- Backyard scientist: Let your child use science to make outdoor activities more fun. They might experiment to create a bubble solution that produces bigger or longer lasting bubbles. Perhaps they could cook s'mores in their very own solar oven (find instructions online.) Of course, as you supervise, they will think you are just playing along with the science!
